Among Chlordane's many advantages are highly effective initial control and long-lasting residual effect. Chlordane is economical, too, and easy to apply. First to Light

Outdoor Trees

It was a small town that first thought of lighting an outdoor community Christmas tree.

Four communities are believed to have thought of the idea about the same time—as early as 1913.

Two of them, McDonald and Germanstown, were in Pennsylvania.

Salem, Ore., decorated a large

Silka spruce. Riverside, Calif.,

illuminated a large evergreen, an Arcturica.

The first national Christmas tree was in 1924 and was sponsored by the American Forestry association.

The event is now televised every year for all parts of the country to see.

The most spectacular outdoor displays in the United States are at the White House and Rockeefeller Center in New York. The

New York display is possibly the most elaborate in the world.

But it was the small towns that first thought of the idea.

Today, nearly every community in the land has some kind of Christmas decorations. Many communities string colorful lights

along the street and decorate light posts with evergreens. Many suspend bells and stars at street intersections and have dazzling community trees.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT... Full

of Yule good fellowship, "Belle Glades to arouse some dille in the folks here of "Ginger." Ginger, goodwill season or not, can't get over her distrust of dogs.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TABLEAU AND CAROLS ENJOYED BY LARGE CROWD

Presentation of the Shepherd Scene, Nativity and the Wise Men, by the Episcopal group, the Altar Society and the Methodist, formed the basis of a community Tableau and Chorus at the Municipal Park Tuesday night. Choirs of the local churches formed a mixed chorus to sing Christmas carols with Robert Ford as narrator, which the large crowd received in the spirit of the season.

The scenes were colorful and the characters were portrayed in fitting commoration of the birth of Christ.

jects of similar purpose. It is also pointed out that both sides are presently committed to sharing of costs as is now set up for the first phase of the program which has the okay of Congress.

This announcement from Washington seemingly is the first hint of public policy by the Republicans explaining away why they won't be able to balance the national budget.

We expect more of these from time to time.

in the kitchen when we had the relatives for Thanksgiving. You missed all the fun."

"You mean go to a restaurant?" Ten-year-old Peter made the words sound evil. "Guy, who wants to do that?"

"I do," his seven-year-old sister, Jean, rallied unexpectedly. "Then I won't have to sit the table!"

Sarah picked up her three-year-old. "Would you like to go to a restaurant for Christmas dinner, Kit?"

Kit stared soberly at her. "Do they have drinks?"

"Sure."

"Okay, I'll go."

"Look like you're outvoted, Peter," Sarah smiled.

"Yes, it does. It won't be like Christmas to eat out."

"You just like the easy part, son," Paul said, "and mother has all the hard work to do. This year we'll make it a real holiday for her."

Christmas was on a Thursday and, that afternoon, long after the last exciting package had been opened, the Kilbrys drove to a nearby restaurant.

Peter looked across the table. "Sure seems funny not to have Uncle Tom sit the rest of the family with us."

"The rest of the family" adds up to fifteen people. Paul remarked dryly, "at $250 per plate."

Peter didn't say any more, but Sarah knew how he felt. It did seem odd, almost lonesome, to see only five of them around the table and she missed watching Paul carve the turkey. When the turkey slices were already on their plates, although Kit had his drumstick.

"I wanted white meat," Jean said, "and they gave me dark meat!"

Quickly, Sarah gave Jean some of her white meat. The turkey was good, but the dressing wasn't nearly as moist as she could make and the gravy seemed a trifle greasy. Neither Paul nor Peter ate as much as they would have at home.

"Just thing," Sarah said cheerfully, "no dishes to wash and wipe."

"No leftovers either," Jean complained.

"Yeah, no turkey sandwiches or anything," Peter growled. "Golly, mom, you could make better pie than this."

"At $250 a plate," Paul said loudly, "and you kids have the nerve to complain!"

"Shh, quiet, dear," Sarah tried to hush him, "people are looking at us."

"It's like eating in a goldfish bowl," he said quietly.

Just then Kit's pie went flying off the table and he let out a howl that echoed around the dining room. Now everybody was looking at them and laughing with Paul and Sarah. But Peter and Jean were blushing, embarrassed to be the center of so much attention. Good-natured or not. Only Kit really enjoyed the confusion as two waitresses cleaned up the spilled pie and brought him a new piece. A la mode, this time.

"Hey, look," he yelled delightedly, "I got cream to eat!" Again the people at surrounding tables laughed, but Sarah was as red-faced as her children. "Honestly," she spattered, "I'd known."

"Next time," Paul interrupted grimly, "we'll get a private dining room."

"Next time, I'm staying home, even if I hafta eat shredded wheat," Peter said defiantly.

Sarah laughed. "There isn't going to be any next time here. Peter was right, it doesn't seem like Christmas to eat out. There's nothing to look forward to, nothing left over and it isn't as good as home cooking. Next time, we'll have all the relatives at our house."

"But the work," Paul protested.

"Oh, nuts to the work. I hardly know what to do with myself this morning. What do you say, kids?"

Jean just grinned, but Peter said, "I say fine, I'll even help with the dishes."

YOU NEED YOUR CHURCH YOUR CHURCH NEEDS YOU . . .

A Hymn Is Born

BY CLINT BONNER

Silent Night, Holy Night

A Priest Goes to See a Christmas Play

It was a custom in Austria for roving groups of actors to give plays in the mountain villages. As the organ in the little church at Oberndorf was broken and the mechanic from nearby Salzburg had pulled all over the floor, a local shipowner came to the annual Christmas play to be given at his home. And, of course, Father Joseph Mohr was invited to see the show.

The sincerity of the young actors touched the priest. After the play he went to the top of a hill that overlooked the tiny village. Alone, he pondered the wonders of the universe. It was a still, clear night . . . a silent night.

The next morning Mohr called at the home of Franz Gruber. Besides being schoolmaster, Gruber played the church organ . . . when it was in playing condition. Mohr handed Gruber a card he had written. He might have it as a Christmas present ... and shyly suggested that he try his hand at setting it to music.

That night, December 21, 1818, Father Mohr went to his little church for Christmas Eve services. The organ there was there with apologies for not having completed his job. Franz Gruber was there . . . with his guitar and a melody he had written for Mohr's card. They were young men, priest and the musician . . . 26 and 31 respectively. Neither had written a song before and, so far as is known, neither wrote another.

Gruber called Mohr to see the strings of his guitar and the two men sang a new Christmas carol. The organ here memorized it. Back in Salzburg he sang it for the Strasser sisters. The organ concert singers added it to their collection of native mountain songs . . . and started it around the world. Translated, English speaking countries know it as . . .

*Silent night, holy night,
Guiding star, lead thy light;
See the stars in the sky,
Glims and homages to our King!
Christ the Savior is born.*

*Silent night, holy night,
Wondrous star, lead thy light;
With the angels let us sing
"Glory to our King,"
Christ the Savior is born."*

*Silent night, holy night,
Darkness fleet, all is light,
Shepherds hear the angels sing,
"Alleluia! hail the King!"
Christ the Savior is born."*

Harilee, pastor, both vocal and instrumental will be presented at each service. Services will begin at 7:30 each evening. The theme suggested by the evangelist will be "To Make Christ Known." The public is invited.

LESSON TOPIC — "The Kingdom Come"

SCRIPTURE LESSON — Matt. 24:14-20; John 17:18-21; Acts 1:8; Revelation 11:15

By Rev. Robert Ford

INTRODUCTION:

Summons up to all we have studied this year in relation to the World, of making it a better place through God's plan for it. We briefly will consider the Kingdom of God, the ultimate purpose of God for this World.

I. PRAYER FOR THE KINGDOM'S PROGRESS — Matt. 6:9-10

In this section of the Sermon on the Mount we have a pattern for Prayer. We are to pray for the advancement of God's Kingdom.

II. PROGRAM OF THE KING'S ADVANCE — Matt. 28:16-20

The Risen Lord's commission emphasizes:

A. His Perogatives — vs. 18

B. His Plan — vs. 19-20a

C. His Promise — vs. 20b

III. PERSONS THE KING USES — John 17:18-21

IV. POWER FOR THE KINGDOM'S OUTREACH — Act 1:8-9

V. PROCLAMATION OF THE KINGDOM CONSUMMATED — Revelation 11:15b

CONCLUSION:

As men are won to Christ, the Kingdom advances. The Church today as an agent of the Kingdom of God has her work cut out. We have the Commission of Christ to go to all the World with the Gospel; that is our Part. We have the promise of God that His Kingdom will be triumphant; that is His self appointed part.

"Jesus Shall reign where'er the sun
Doth his successive journeys run;
His Kingdoms spread from shore to shore,
Till moons shall wax and wane no more."
— Isaac Watts.

Good Citizenship Brings Dividend To Sammy Green, 12

The night of December 16th will be long remembered by pupils and faculty of the East Lake School in Pahokee. Not only was it the occasion of the fifth annual presentation of the "Joybells of Christmas", beautiful pageant of the Nativity presented each year as part of the Community Relations Program by the school, but there was a very special presentation which preceded the pageant and which made everyone feel very proud and happy.

This was the reward for Good Citizenship presented to Sammy Green, fifth grade pupil at East Lake, by the Palm Beach County Board of Public Instruction through Mr. Henry O. Earwood, member of the Board and Mr. Howell L. Watkins, Superintendent of Public Instruction. The reward was a check for $250.00.

Events leading up to this occasion were as follows: On Halloween night the school was broken into and a classroom record player and brand new adding machine were stolen; ten nights later, the same thing occurred, with another record player, a typewriter, and petty cash being taken. The last time there was also some breakage and vandalism.

Chief of Police Leon Guthrie and Principal Stanleigh Murrell called to all pupils, explaining that closed lips, but wide open eyes and ears, might help in solving the robbery and instructing them as to proceeding in case any of the missing property should be spotted. On Armistice night, Sammy Green, returning from a late movie saw the thief trying to dispose of a record player which he recognized as being one of those stolen from the school.

Quick thinking, the ability to reach a fast decision, plus positive action on the part of the 12-year-old pupil resulted in the apprehension, and conviction of the culprit, plus the return of all but one item of the missing school property.

The School Board, meanwhile, had posted a $250 dollar reward for information leading to the arrest, conviction of the guilty party or parties. "and without question Sammy earned his reward. In making the presentation both Mr. Earwood and Mr. Watkins spoke highly of the quality of work and the type of citizenship being fostered by the school program, congratulating the principal, faculty and student body upon the type of future citizens being developed as was evidenced by Sammy upon this occasion.

Asked how this money would be spent, Sammy's mother said that it would be "put in the bank for Sammy's future education."

THE CHRISTMAS DINNER

Young Mrs. Frank Sanderson hung up the telephone receiver and stared bleakly at the beautifully set dining table. The Santa Claus sleigh centerpiece filled with red and white striped candy canes, the sprig of holly at each place setting, the gleaming silver—was it all to be for nothing?

"I'm so terribly sorry," her mother had just said over the phone. "We simply aren't going to be able to make it for Christmas dinner. The roads are just a sheet of ice."

"Oh, Mother!" Eva had exclaimed. "They won't seem like Christmas at all without you here. And Frank and I were so excited about it being our first time to have the family."

"I knew how disappointed you'd be, Eva," Mother answered. "—Dad says it's just impossible."

"Oh, Frank!" Eva was close to tears. "It's going to seem so queer without mom and Dad." "I know how you feel, honey," Frank put an arm around her comfortingly. And what's more, what about all that food sitting around the kitchen?"

"We'll just have to find somebody to eat with us," Eva wiped her eyes and looked thoughtful. "Let's see, can you think of any of our friends here in town who hadn't planned anything special for today?"

"Well," Frank said, "the Springers are eating with his folks, the Albrights—left by train yesterday for Detroit, the McCalls—oh, you know as well as I do that everybody's dated with you. You just can't leave Christmas dinner to chance."

"Frank! What about the Aarongards? You know the fisherman and his family who live in the cottage down by the docks?"

"You mean that tall, quiet guy with three or four tow-headed kids?"

"Yes, and I heard someone in the post office yesterday saying they've been having a struggle lately—the river's been so ice-blocked that he can't get his boat out to the lake, and there's nothing coming in for them."

"Honey, that's a swell idea!" Frank agreed heartily. "But what'll we tell them?"

"Why, just the plain truth, that our folks couldn't make it at the last minute and we'd be so glad if they'd substitute for them."

"Maybe they won't believe it," Frank said. "They've got their pride you know, people like that don't want charity."

"Just try anyway," Frank. Eva pleaded. "Go ahead and phone him right now."

"O. K., here goes." And Frank went to the phone.

A minute or two later Frank hung up the receiver and shook his head. "Just what I was afraid of," he sighed. "When I first started to talk, and wished him Merry Christmas he seemed tickled to death that we'd thought of them, but the minute I mentioned the invitation he froze up and said very politely that they had their own plans. He just didn't believe the story."

Eva looked crestfallen. But after a moment's silence she suddenly said, "Let me have that phone, and hastily dialed a number."

"Mr. Aarongard, this is Mrs. Sanderson. We're so sorry you can't come to dinner here, it would have meant a lot to us. But I'm calling this time to ask a favor of you."

"I understand that you go inland to Brinkville every week or so to deliver some fish orders. I just wonder if, the next time you go, you'd be kind enough to take my family's gifts to them—their farm is right on your way."

"—Yes, all their things are under the tree here. We naturally expected them to pick them up when they came to dinner, but—"

Eva began to smile as she listened, and then said cordially, "Oh, fine, we'll expect all of you at about three o'clock. Good-bye 'til then." And she hung up the receiver.

"They guess they'll come after all, if we don't mind changing their minds," she reported happily.

"You're a smart little wife if I do say it myself," Frank grinned. "Come on, let's shove that bird in the oven."

JOIN THE MARINES
BE HOME CHRISTMAS

"If I enlist in the Marines now, will I be home for Christmas and New Year holidays?" The answer is definitely and emphatically "YES."

According to Major Robert L. Autry, Officer in Charge of Marine Corps recruiting in Florida, this is the question most frequently asked by applicants for the all-Florida Everglades Platoon. Men enlisting in this group will not be sent to active duty until January 20, 1954, the Major stressed.

Enlistments are still being accepted in the Everglades Platoon although only a limited quota has been authorized. Young men facing obligated military service who have not been called up for induction now have the opportunity to enlist and serve with their buddies and fellow Floridians during their recruit training at Parris Island, S. C. The Everglades Platoon, which is made up entirely of men from the State of Florida, offers this chance to young men who enlist now.

"Remember, January 20, 1954, is the date you will go on active duty," Major Autry reminds applicants. For further information contact your Marine Corps Recruiting Station at U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Sub-Station, Post Office Building, West Palm Beach, Florida.

BEHAVIOR PROBLEMS IN CHILDREN BY FREE FORUM

"Do you really understand your child?" "What makes a child jealous?" "What causes the child to be nervous?" These are a few of the interesting questions to be asked the panel on "Behavior Problems in Children" by Dr. B. B. Sory, Moderator.

This Free Medical Forum is to be the third of the series of six Forums to be staged in January and February in the Palm Beach High School auditorium at 8:30 in the evening.

"The Forums are sponsored by the County Health Department and the County Medical Society as a part of the Public Relations program. These programs are designed to dispel fear and to bring hope and encouragement to all," stated Dr. T. E. Daly, President, County Medical Society.

Miss Margaret F. Bodenstien is Secretary of the Forums and is now making the final arrangements for the opening Forum on Progress in Polio to be held on Tuesday evening, January 12th, at 8:30.

"This question of understanding the child can be and is a most important one. A child that has not the love and affection its nature calls for can develop into an adult problem," stated Dr. Sory. "Are we asking too much of the child?"

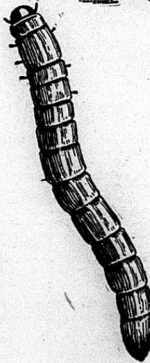

We may be the problem and not the child," continued Dr. Sory.

On the panel will be Dr. W.

F. Ande, Dr. R. V. Artola, Dr. G. L. Gaines, Dr. J. P. Greene, Dr. E. A. P. Kellerman and Dr. D. W. Martin.

Recommended control of wireworm and other soil pests
... on all Florida
vegetable crops

aldrin

LAST YEAR aldrin established a fine record of soil pest control on Florida corn, sugar cane and sweet potatoes. Now aldrin is recommended by Florida Experiment Stations for use on every important vegetable crop in the state.

Aldrin gives you these important control advantages:

1. Powerful killing action—all-season freedom from soil pest damage with just one application.

2. Chemical stability—Aldrin remains stable regardless of the pH of the soil (acid or alkaline). This stability holds even when aldrin is mixed with fertilizer.

3. Can be used two ways—in an aldrin-fertilizer mix, or sprayed directly on the ground and harrowed in.

4. Low per-acre cost—a direct result of aldrin's high killing power.

So—for healthy crops get aldrin: Your fertilizer or insecticide dealer can supply you.

WHY NOT GROW OUR OWN CHRISTMAS TREES HERE?

Florida homes are decorated with some 600,000 Christmas trees each year, most of them shipped in from far distant points.

Floridians could well grow the bulk of these trees themselves, the Florida State Chamber of Commerce stated recently in pointing to this opportunity for farmers and land owners. With suitable land available for Christmas tree plantations, a quick growing season and ample rainfall, Yule trees could be grown in Florida for state consumption to good advantage.

Most of the Christmas trees sold through retail outlets in Florida today are northern fir and spruce which must be cut early to reach the state by the holiday season. This week's business review of the State Chamber's research and industrial division gives an estimate of approximately 70,000 state-grown trees cut for the Christmas market. Locally grown trees have the obvious advantage of freshness, greater fragrance and lower cost.

FLORIDA BIRTHS ARE ON HISTORICAL RISE

Florida recorded more births this past October than at any other time in its history, the State Board of Health's Bureau of Vital Statistics reported today. On the books went the names of 8,297 infants.

The peak came in the Fall was no surprise to the Bureau. "This is always the case," said Everett Williams, Jr., director, "not only in Florida but all over the country." He could give no scientific explanation for this pattern. The October figure was 54 percent greater than April, running last with only 5,400. It is in the Spring-April, May and June—that the fewest babies are born.

Births for 1953 through October totaled 74,219, running nine percent higher than the total for the similar period last year.
